Welcome Message

Musculoskeletal problems continue to be a burden for patient, health care and also for the community. For the patient itself musculoskeletal complaint can create further problems related with pain, disability, work-loss and decreased quality of life. In the bigger scope, the growing number of people with musculoskeletal problems will result in increased utilization of health care resources and also increased health care cost. World Health Organization reported that hundreds of million people have musculoskeletal problem and it is predicted that the number will increase.

Due to the enormous burden of musculoskeletal conditions, on November 30, 1999 WHO and United Nations declare Bone and Joint Decade 2000 - 2010 which encourage government from all nations to take necessary actions hand in hand with medical professional to overcome the growing problem of musculoskeletal conditions.
